

Major General, retired David Rubenstein, FACHE, spent 12 years in command and ended his 35-year Army career as Army Deputy Surgeon General and then Commanding General of the Army Medical Department Center and School and, concurrently, as 16th Chief of the Medical Service Corps. General Rubenstein is a graduate of Texas A&M University and the Army War College and has a master's degree in Health Administration from Baylor University. Among his recognitions are distinguished alumnus status at two universities, listing in six Who's Who publications, and twice being included in Modern Healthcare's list of the 100 most influential people in healthcare. He is a board-certified healthcare executive and Past Chairman of the American College of Healthcare Executives. He is Chairman Emeritus of AMSUS: The Society for Federal Health Professionals and represents the public on committees of the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education and the American Board of Medical Specialties.